The fatal Enquiry.

A PLAY.

SCENE I.

Widow Lovedear, Mr. Hatemalice, Mr. Chairman, and Miſs Prate-apace.

WIDOW. I HAVE been juſt reading the News, Mr. Hatemalice, and can by no Means underſtand what is meant by Medals.

Mr. Hatem. Do not you underſtand that Madam?

Wid. No indeed, Mr. Hatemalice, I do not.

Hatem. Do not you know Madam it was reported all over this Province when Britannicus came in, that he brought no Credentials with him?

Wid. I do, I do, I do, and now I underſtand every Thing, —they were concealed.

Hatem. Mr. Chairman ſaid he had none.

Wid. God bleſs a Day, where was my Underſtanding? Well—my Memory is vaſtly decayed ſince I loſt my poor Huſband.

Hatem. Then it wants a little quickening, Widow.

Wid. I am amazed; well, I have but one Month more to be tormented with theſe Weeds. They hurt the Memory vaſtly, I ſee that.

Hatem. Well, do you think that Britannicus hath been well uſed among us?

Wid. No far from it, he has had a Thouſand Lyes fathered upon him to my certain Knowledge: Mr. Chairman hath uſed him baſely, I am aſhamed, I bluſh, but I am reſolved to make a little more Enquiry into this Affair of the Medals, if the Lord will give me Grace.

Hatem. You will find it a very dark Story I do aſſure you Madam, but here comes Mr. Chairman himſelf, he will tell you all and you muſt always believe him before your own Eyes.

Wid. But I will believe my Eyes and my Ears too, and both of them tell me he hath uſed this Gentleman very ill. I always took him to be a malacious Man, but now I ſee it. I'll make him to ſick as not to be able to chew his Quid.

Hatem. If you have the Confidence to believe your own Eyes and Ears before Mr. Chairman's Word, you can do much more than many Perſons in this Town dare do——Here comes Miſs Prate apace too.

Wid. So much the better — I am reſolved to ring him ſuch a Peal ——

Hatem. I ſhall for the future look upon him as a very malicious unjuſt Man.

Chairman —— SERVANT.

Hatem. Your Servant Sir.

Wid. Your Servant Mr. Chairman.

Miſs Your humble Servant Gentlemen, Servant Madam.

Wid. You will not take it amiſs, we were ſpeaking of the laſt News and the Medals, Sir.

Hatem. The laſt but one Madam.

Chairm. I think you might have employ'd your time to better Purpoſe—Have you read theſe new Pamphlets Madam?

Hatem. You told us, Mr. Chairman, when Britannicus came amongſt us, he had no Medals

Wid. I wanted to aſk you, How you came to ſay ſo? Sir

Chairm. I thought it the beſt Way Madam.

Miſs. But I fancy you will find it was the worſt Way you could have taken Sir: Truth is always beſt at the long Run: How much more favourable were you to Parſon J—s than to this good Man!

Wid. This Stranger, this Scholar, this Gentleman, whoſe Shoes you are not worthy to carry after him.

Hatem. Do not be ſo warm Widow, The Truth is not loſt ſpoken at all Times: You are extravagant in beſtowing your Praiſes, tho' the Perſon you ſpeak of well deſerves them all.——Did not you, Mr. Chairman, ſee theſe Medals when Britannicus came in?

Chairm. I did ſo.

Wid. And how came you to tell us he had none?

Chairm. I thought I ſhould hear no more about it — Let us talk of ſomething more edifying Madam.

Hatem. But you ſhould not have ſaid he had no Medals, Sir.

Wid. It was a very diſhoneſt Action and no honeſt Man would have done it.

Chairm. He had no Letters for me.

Hatem. A private Letter is never called Credentials.

Chairm. What then?

Hatem. Some publick Inſtruments Sir.

Miſs. And perhaps he did not know any of your Acquaintance.

Wid. Or did not know or think there was ſuch a Man in the World: Charles-Town as free for him as for any Man.

Chairm. The Medals he brought were good for nothing.

Wid. Ay, there lies the Roguery, firſt there were none, and now the Truth is come out they are good for nothing. What ſhameful Shifts they are put to — But defenſible or not he muſt be defended.

Hatem. Mr. Chairman, I muſt be ſo free as to tell you, that you never had ſo good in all your Life.

Wid. Produce as good if you dare.

Hatem. I am ſure they are better than what you carried from C—nhoy.

Wid. Produce——

Miſs. As good if you dare.

Hatem. They were ſtruck by ſome of the greateſt Men in Europe, at leaſt in their Profeſſion, to my certain Knowledge —— Sixteen Hands —— ſuch eminent Hands —— And yet no Medals —— I am aſtoniſh'd at your Conduct Sir.

Wid. The Point to be debated now is, How they came to be concealed? Why you told us and every Body elſe there were no Medals. I am ſure ſuch a Report went all over the Province.

Miſs. And it came from you Mr. Chairman, I often heard you ſay ſo, at our Houſe.

Hatem. And I think all the Province ſhould be undeceived: I'll have theſe Medals hung up at the Aſſemb'y-Houſe, and publiſh all the Inſcription in the Gazette: I am ſure none will ſay they were not ſufficient, unleſs it be ſome miſerable Tool that will ſay any Thing after the Prieſt.

Miſs. In my Opinion, the only Queſtion now is, How they came to be concealed?

Wid. Why, we ſhould be told there were NONE This was unjuſt to us as well as to the Gentleman.

Chairm. He ſhould have brought Medals from the laſt Lodge he was at?

Miſs. Why were theſe concealed?

Hatem. Why theſe were from thence, and ſtruck not long before he left the Place.

Wid. How came you to underſtand the Cuſtoms of England ſo well. How ſhould you know any Thing of Cuſtom in any Place in ſuch Caſes.

Hatem. I am perſuaded there is no ſuch Cuſtom in England as you have reported there was.

Wid. No, nor at Cain—y neither, whatever there is among the Moodians.

Miſs. Pray Sir, who do you know at this laſt Lodge you were ſpeaking of, and how could you have guarded againſt Counterfeits?

Hatem. How could you have known ſuch Medals to be genuine as you knew theſe to be.

Chairm. The Gentleman ſhould have brought a Number of Men with him to prove them to be ſo.

Hatem.

Hatem. And then send for others to prove these to be honest Men and true.

Miss. I am perswaded if he had brought such Medals as you speak of, you would then have had some Excuse for your inimitable Conduct.

Wild You would have wanted to know what Hour of the Day he was born, whether in a Town or in the Country, and who his Nurse was — You would perhaps have expected to see the Parish Books in which his Christ'ning was regist'er'd, you'd have expected Credentials under the Great Seal of the Man in the Moon and a Thousand other Ceremonies besides to satisfy your scrupulous Conscience.

Miss. Mr. Chairman is not always so scrupulous, Madam.

Wild Witness the Encouragement he gave to P—s—n Vine, whose Medals were to come after him.

Hatem Ay, and several other Tools in Time past; and at this very Day, if the D—l himself was to come from Mr. W—field you would employ him.

Wild. We should see him cut a most Right Reverend Figure in your Chair.

Miss. I think, Mr. Chairman, Britannicus always carries Recommendation enough about him. His own personal Worth recommends him, and will recommend him, notwithstanding all the Pains you have taken to deprive him of his good Name.

Wild. You might have thought it an Honour to have him in your Chair, he has filled better than ever you saw, and has been a Credit to your Friends in this Town. We have all known him a whole Year and I am sure he deserved better Treatment.

Miss. How you used to speak of this Gentleman to my Daddy, Sir! Sometimes he was a poor ignorant creeping Tool, sometimes no Christian, another Time he was a Thief and had robbed you.

Wild You have robbed him of his Reason and Christianity, you have been a base Slanderer and a furious Reviler.

Hatem. And if I do not see him overtaken by Providence I am mistaken: Did you not say he had no Medals before you spoke to him or knew his Name?

Chairm. Let us drop, Let us drop it.

Miss. And after you saw them with your own Eyes?

Wild Did not you recommend him very strongly to your Friends in the Country when he came in?

Chairm. I did so.

Miss. And told them, That if they did not give him Invitation immediately, you knew who would. How much less Christianity, &c.

Hatem. If he had no Medals how came you to recommend him so strongly?

Miss. If he had, how came you to conceal them?

Chairm. I told you before, Miss, I thought it the best Way.

Wild. O Sir, Sir, thou that slanderest the Prophets, and slayest them that are sent unto thee — Hadst thou known before this thy Day the Things that belonged to thy Peace

Hatem. But he would not accept of Peace from the Man he had injured.

Miss What a fine Character you gave Britannicus in the Letter you wrote the other Day.

[Mr Chairman withdraws.] SERVANT.

Hatem. Fellows that ne'er were read nor heard of,
If thou writest on, will write thy Head off.

Wild. Mr. Chairman acts a Part in a Play at last.

(To be continued.)

Mr. Timothy,

EVERY Body knows, S—S—could not stand for Jo— Simple, because HE wrote the last. &c. &c. &c.

CHARLES TOWN, Sept. 9.

Tuesday and Wednesday last came on the Election of Members of Assembly to represent this Parish, when Gabriel Manigault, Samuel Eveleigh, George Austin, Ebenezer Simmons, and Othniel Beale, Esqrs. were elected according to Law.

Last Tuesday Afternoon a Spanish Privateer Schooner had the Impudence to chase in two Vessels quite over this Bar; one of them Capt. Evans from Jamaica, who (being within Hale of the Enemy) received several Volleys of their Musquet-shot on board his Sloop, which however did no other Damage than sticking in her Stern and Sides, and making some Holes in her Sails; Capt. Evans fir'd two Carriage Gun shot into the Privateer which he believes did Execution: The other Vessel was one of our Pilot Boats, belonging to Mr. Peele, who also received several Musquet shot in his Sails. — When the Schooner first came up with Capt Evans, he suppos'd her to be a Friend, hailed her, and ask'd from whence she came, he was immediately answer'd, from Sea, Spanish Colours were hoisted, and he ordered to strike to the King of Spain, but he disbelieved their Orders, and made the best of his Way up to Town.

Upon this Advice, Mr. Thomas Terry (one of our Merchants) immediately offer'd one Man's service of his Schooner lately arriv'd from Jamaica, gratis: She being a Prime Sailor, was thereupon fitted out, and man'd with Seamen from his Majesty's Ships, and on Thursday Morning last sailed in Quest of the Enemy, commanded by Capt. James Ramsey.

On Saturday last arrived here from South-Edisto, Mr. Philip Thomas Mate, and several other Seamen belonging to the Ship Dunbar, William Vaughan Commander, of and from New Providence for this Place, who give us certain Accounts of the Loss of the said Ship in the following Manner, That they sail'd from Providence on Friday the 30th of August, and after a short and agreeable Passage (without seeing one Sail in the whole Voyage) made the Land of St. Helena on Tuesday Morning following, but the Winds proving variable and contrary, stood off and on 'till Wednesday Night, then came to an Anchor off South Edisto, in five Fathom Water; That on Thursday Morning they weighed Anchor, flushed with the Hopes of making their intended Port in Safety, when immediately they saw a Vessel at about 4 Leagues Distance, bearing down upon them with crowded Sail and English Colours, this obliged them to stand in for the Shore, 'till they came into two Fathom Water, where the Ship grounded. The Vessel that gave them Chase was so eager in the Pursuit, and probably at a Distance that she was in no Danger from the Naval Force here, that she ran herself aground likewise, on Thursday Afternoon about 4 o'Clock, where she might have easily fallen into the Hands of a TARTAR, had she not been secure in Port, waiting the Event of a tedious Hurricane Season, which threatens to be longer this Year than usual —— Mr. Thomas further acquaints us, that this Vessel happened to be a large Spanish Snow, mounting about 18 Carriage Guns, and had in Company with her Two small Sloops, and One Schooner, which they suppos'd to be the Augustin Men of War that so frequently come upon this Coast and pick up our Vessels, even in Sight of this Town, &c! [One would think, the Industry and daily Success of these small Men of War, would excite the larger Ones here to a more vigorous Pursuit of their Duty and Interest] And that the Snow being still aground, continued the Chase by her Barge, which obliged Capt. Vaughan and his Men (to avoid being made Prisoners) to quit the Dunbar, and leave the Enemy in the quiet of Ship and Cargo. Mr. Thomas further says, that while the Spanish Snow was aground within the Banks of South Edisto, she hoisted an English Signal of Distress, as was thought to decoy some small Craft to pilot them over the Bar again; that the Schooner Privateer (being shallow and of small Draught of Water) went on board the Ship, and plundered her of the most valuable Part of her Cargo; and that the Two Sloops stood out to Sea steering different Courses, to pursue their usual Game. — The Inhabitants about Edisto behaved exceeding well on this Occasion; they took the Alarm very soon, and in about an Hour's Time had upwards of 100 Men in Arms, at the Post, where they still continue on Duty, 'till these Vessels are banished the Coast.

We are assur'd, that one of our Men of War will sail in Pursuit of these Privateers, in less than Three Weeks.

Last Wednesday arrived Capt Waterman from Rhode Island, by whom we have certain Advice, that Commodore WARREN at Cape Breton, has taken two French East India Ships and one from the South-Seas; one of the former came off the Harbour off Louisburg and made a Signal for a Pilot, upon which the Commodore sent out a 60 Gun Ship, that both piloted and conveyed her safe in; the others were taken by the cruizing Ships.

Capt Waterman, the Day he arriv'd, saw the Spanish Privateer that chas'd Capt Evans, in Company with a Sloop.

By the last Accounts from South Edisto, the Spanish Privateers were not gone from thence Yesterday Morning.
